➔ ASPCRO Meeting briefing

Lisa Gervase stated that she recently attended the Association of Structural Pest Control Regulatory Officials (“ASPCRO”) meeting in Indianapolis, where the theme was “improving professionalism in the industry”. There were numerous presentations, and the consensus was that the number one way to improve professionalism is through education and reaching out to consumers and industry members. She stated that over half of the states are members of ASPCRO, and she was impressed by some of the industry members and regulatory agencies in some states who created schools for pest control, some for licensure and some for remedial education. She also stated that she was elected to serve a two-year term on the eight-member ASPCRO board.

☞ EPA Federal credentials status and training

Lisa Gervase stated that the training consists of about a week’s worth of solid work. Four staff members have completed all of the classes and two more will be completing the training soon.

✓ Inspector training update

Lisa Gervase stated that staff had an all-day training on August 18 to make sure everyone that everyone was on the same page regarding investigative and enforcement procedures.

Lisa Gervase also stated that on August 29, an industry notice was sent out to all business licensees updating them as to what is currently going on with the Commission and its laws and rules, policies and procedures. It also prompted them to be aware of future changes. The notice is also on the Commission's website. Also, Arizona's state regulators have been approached to help with Hurricane Katrina relief efforts. She stated that she has offered to work with regulators in the affected states to help license in Arizona those people who worked in the pest control industry there. Robert Potter appeared.

Mr. Potter stated that he is part owner of Landtamers, LLC and the other part owner is his son, Christopher Potter. He stated that Commission Inspector Brian Kennedy was helpful in providing direction for Mr. Potter after the unlicensed application violation. He stated that this is their company's first complaint and they won't have another one, as they stopped all spraying immediately, had a meeting with their team, sent two workers to classes, and one of them now has an applicator license and is working on getting a QP license and will be testing this month. He stated that they have a contract with a QP for both their big spraying jobs and their spot spraying jobs, and it is costing them a fortune to spot spray. He asked about reducing the penalty.. Jason Aanderud added that one of the aggravating factors was that the respondents knew about the Commission because they had licensed applicators. He stated that he has not seen test results to use as possible mitigators. Commissioner Peterson noted that another aggravator was that proper personal protective equipment was not used during the application. Commissioner Fraker asked if Mr. Potter knew that obtaining QP and business licenses was the proper procedure to follow, given that he had licensed applicators working for him. Mr. Potter stated that one of his licensed applicator employees said that they could spray, and he trusted that information.

E. Professional Exterminators, LLC. dba Professional Exterminators (BL)/Randolph C.E. Johnson (Member/QP) - Case # 2005-024

Mr. Johnson was present.

Commissioner Robinson stated that he does not believe that the Commission has assessed fines in cases like this against a QP who does not have an applicator license. Commissioner Robinson stated that he is one of those such people who has a QP license but no applicator license because he does not make applications. He felt it would be unfair to keep the extra $100 part of the fine for this. Commissioner Fraker agreed that, to his knowledge, this was the first such case, and he stated that he does not think it was ever made blatantly clear to people in this position how to handle it. He thinks a QP license is a higher level license than an applicator license anyway, and asked why a QP who is not applying pesticides should pay for two licenses when one is sufficient, even though this is not now their legal interpretation of the appropriate action. He suggested that the Commission should reduce the fine from $600 to $500.

MOTION: To accept proposed resolution and if the Consent Agreement is not executed by the deadline stated in the Consent Agreement transmittal letter to send the case to the Office of Administrative Hearings, by Commissioner Baker.

He stated that he has been going to church every week, and his time is well focused with his kids and at work for his dad. He wants to get back in the pest control industry though and would like to eventually get a QP license and do it on his own. Commissioner Runbeck asked if there is a company that has agreed to hire him. Mr. Tucker stated that there isn't one yet and that he wants to first get his license. Commissioner Runbeck asked who Mr. Tucker worked for before when he was in the pest control industry. Mr. Tucker stated that he worked for Commissioner Fraker at Patriot Pest & Termite Control for eight months and also for Burns Pest Elimination for almost two years. Commissioner Baker stated that Mr. Tucker is showing the right signs of behavior now but is still concerned because Mr. Tucker just got out of prison and is still on parole. Commissioner Robinson agreed. Commissioner Peterson advised Mr. Tucker that he has the option to withdraw his application today and can come back before the Commission at a later time and apply again perhaps when his parole is done. This way, he would be able to avoid having a denial on his record. Lisa Gervase noted, however, that if a license is denied, Mr. Tucker still would have the right to go to a formal hearing and present his case to an Administrative Law Judge if he so chooses. Mr. Tucker then withdrew his application.

Application withdrawn.

H. Mitchell, Jason Eshunn Romar

Mr. Mitchell appeared.

Darren Kirkham, employer from Frontline Exterminating, LLC, appeared.

Mr. Mitchell submitted a reference letter from his mother-in-law. Mr. Kirkham stated that Mr. Mitchell has good customer service skills. Commissioner Baker asked what Mr. Mitchell has been doing over the past couple of years. Mr. Mitchell stated that he has been working in customer service jobs and in sales jobs selling about anything he can sell, telephone work for the most part. He stated that he stumbled upon the pest control industry in the newspaper, namely Safeguard Pest Control, who allowed him to enter the industry. He stated that it seemed like it could be profitable and would allow him to work outside of an office atmosphere. Mr. Kirkham stated that Mr. Mitchell just started about a week and half ago as an applicator and has been honest with what has happened in the past and has nothing to hide. Mr. Mitchell acknowledged that he has a pretty long criminal history and affiliation with gangs. In 1996, he received his first felony for resisting arrest while under the influence of PCP. He stated that he got into an altercation with a friend of his and then ran away from officers. His charge of attempted forgery was committed in 1994, but he didn't serve time on that until being released from prison for the resisting arrest charge. He stated that his friends asked him to cash a stolen check, and he got caught because they were dumb enough to go to the bank where the victim banked. He was 22 years old at the time. He stated that he was incarcerated from 1996-1997, and was re-incarcerated from 1998-1999 for the forgery felony. He stated that his fourth felony for resisting arrest and disorderly conduct was in 1999. He served three years for that, was released in 2003, and completed parole in 2004. Commissioner Runbeck asked if Mr. Mitchell was subject to random drug tests while on parole. Mr. Mitchell stated that he was and that he completed those and completed anger management classes. He also took classes about changing his ways of thinking. Commissioner Runbeck asked if Mr. Mitchell had to pay restitution. Mr. Mitchell stated that there is no more restitution to pay and that his co-defendants had to pay forgery restitution. Commissioner Peterson asked if Mr. Mitchell has had any problems since February, 2004. Mr. Mitchell stated that he has not except for only a couple of traffic tickets: speeding and running a red light. Commissioner Peterson asked if once you are a member of a gang, whether you are always a member. Mr. Mitchell stated that is a cliché. He stated that he is a man who got involved with a group of kids. They would use each other to get different things and after his second time in prison, when he was 22, he realized that he did not need them any more. He told them that he is a man now and has a family to look after. He stated that he never turned his back on them as a friend, but he told them he couldn't deal with them in criminal aspects anymore. Most, if not all of them, are locked up right now. The only recent contact he has had was when one of them came over to him. Commissioner Runbeck asked what happened in 1999 and 2000. Mr. Mitchell stated that he had come home late after being at a bar and police were on the premises investigating something else. He started being a jerk and was cited for resisting arrest and disorderly conduct. He stated that he had recently gotten out of prison when that happened. He took it to court and to trial, which ended up with a hung jury. Commissioner Peterson asked if Mr. Mitchell still drinks. Mr. Mitchell stated that he used to have hard liquor but now will occasionally have a few beers. But he stated that he does not get out of hand now. He also used to drink by himself, which was problematic. Commissioner Runbeck recognized that Mr. Mitchell's criminal history stems from a young age and stated that she was impressed by his honesty and willingness to deal with the things that have gone on, and also the fact that he has someone willing to vouch for him. She expressed hope that he would not let people down.

I. Mackendrick, Jason Christopher

Pulled from the agenda.

J. Sheets, Diane Louise

Ms. Sheets appeared.

Commissioner Baker asked Ms. Sheets if she is currently employed. Ms. Sheets stated that she is employed by Top Notch Pest Control, which is owned by her husband. She has been working for them for about two to three years without a wage. She stated that she would just be filling in doing pesticide applications. Commissioner Peterson asked Ms. Sheets if she has or did have a problem with drinking. Ms. Sheets stated that she drank and drove, which resulted in her having to pay fines, take classes, go to counseling, etc., and she thinks that helped, because she has since given up drinking. She stated that she was on supervised probation for 18 months with no dirty random screenings, and she has been off of probation for a little over a year.

XVII. Commission Updates and Reports

A. Metro Institute's request to modify test site locations

Lisa Gervase stated that she has been in discussions with Mike Means from Metro Institute regarding moving a testing site from Tempe to a location more in demand for customers. The current contract requires that the testing sites be one east of Central Avenue and one west of Central Avenue. She stated that it seems like it would be a good idea to have a testing site more towards the northwest valley, and she will probably craft a letter amendment to the contract. Commissioner Fraker agreed that this would be a step in the right direction.
